P.C.'s HOLD SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION

A year or so ago some of the adherents of Alberta's present political regime claimed that the Progressive-Conservative Party, which hadn't had a provincial leader for twenty-one years, would be unable to find a good man to head the party provincially. How wrong they were was proved at the Alberta Progressive-Conservative Convention held last Friday and Saturday in the MacDonald Hotel and the Jubilee Auditorium when not just one, but five good men came forward for party leadership.

Interest and enthusiasm was high right from the opening registration on Thursday evening, when the large number of delegates, alternates and visitors who registered early showed that this was going to be a well-attended convention. Very few of the alternates got a chance to vote in the final count-down on Saturday afternoon as interest was so high the regular delegates were almost all on hand for the big moment.

The five men who were in the running were W.J.C. "Cam" Kirby, who had previously been president of the Alberta Progressive-Conservative Association, and who had resigned that position to run on the leadership ticket; C.A. Lazerte, a young lawyer of Edmonton, who resigned a position as party organizer for Northern Alberta to campaign as leader; Ernest Watkins, M.L.A. from Calgary, also a lawyer, with several books to his credit; Clifford Main, also a lawyer and an alderman in the City of Edmonton; and Mayor Ian Toshack, mayor of Drumheller.

The opening session at 10:00 o'clock Friday morning was preceded by a skit of bagpipes and rattle of drums as the cortege of dignitaries, led by His Worship Mayor Hawrelak, of Edmonton, came down the aisle of the Ballroom in the MacDonald.

Following the singing of the National Anthem and prayer Mayor Hawrelak gave the address of Welcome, which was responded to by Chairman Roy V. Deyell, of Calgary, who accepted the Provincial Progressive-Conservative presidency following the resignation of Mr. Kirby.

Mr. Deyell mentioned the speech of Premier Manning which had been given the evening before, on the eve of the Tory Convention, following a caucus of Social Credit top brass, referring to the Premier's speech as "a program of fear" since it was given without warning on the eve of the P.C. convention.

Keynote Speaker, Honorable Dufferin Roblin, Premier of Manitoba was introduced by J. Percy Page, M.L.A., and long-time Conservative. Premier Roblin told his audience that there was danger in over-confidence, as, he said, a party will not win a provincial election just because it has been successful federally. He stressed the fact that the party should enlist good men as candidates in each constituency. He said he would not discuss Alberta party politics, but he said, it was customary in Canada to eventually change political parties, he continued, "in Alberta... in time there will be a change. I won't say when..."

Notable guests at the convention, beside Mr. Roblin were Honorable Leon Balcer, Q.C., P.C. M.P. who at the age of 40 is one of the many young and stalwart of the Progressive-Conservative government in Ottawa; Miss Elizabeth Janzen, national president of the P.C. Women's Association; Douglas Jung, M.P., National President of the Y.P.C. association, the first Canadian of Chinese extraction to be elected to Parliament; Allister Grosart, National Director of the Progressive-Conservative party; Robert Soboda, Provincial President of the P.C. party in Saskatchewan; Deane Finlayson, Provincial leader of the P.C. party in B.C., and almost all the Members of Parliament from Alberta, including the representative from Jasper-Edson constituency Dr. Hugh Horner, his brother Jack, from Acadia Riding; Jack Biggs, of Athabasca; Jim Speakman of Wetaskiwin and Terry Nugent of Edmonton.

Following the issuing of the ballot books on Saturday morning the delegates gathered in Jubilee Auditorium in the afternoon for the balloting. (continue inside)

KEN MASON'S COLUMN:

EDMONTON -- The surprising thing about Premier Manning's five-year development plan, announced last week, is the sharp reversal of Social Credit policy and the sudden acceptance of suggestions Opposition parties and others have been making for years.

Biggest surprise of all is the suspension of the oil and gas royalty dividend scheme, which the government and its supporters so stubbornly defended through two sessions of the Legislature against all-out attacks by Opposition members.

The dividend will be replaced with just the sort of things that opponents of the plan have been recommending:

--Homes for the aged, built throughout the province at government expense, in 1959.

--Street paving and development of recreational facilities in some 200 towns, villages and hamlets, in 1960.

--Establishment of a major hospital and medical centre, along the lines of the Mayo Clinic, in Calgary, in 1961.

--Facilities for the care of emotionally disturbed and physically handicapped children, in 1962.

--Setting up of a provincial archives and museum, probably in Edmonton, slated for 1963.

While these measures will undoubtedly be welcomed by the majority of Alberta citizens, the Social Credit party is leaving itself wide open to Opposition claims that the administration "has finally come around to seeing things our way".

The obvious conclusion to be drawn is that Social Credit has been worried about its chances in the next election, and decided it had to offer some pretty powerful election bait.

Whether the five-year "anti-recession" plan will do the trick is anyone's guess, but with an election expected next year the government will have the advantage of being able to ask for a new mandate in order to see it through.

It's very similar to the sort of thing that won the federal election for John Diefenbaker, but with one major difference -- Premier Manning has been able to save the money to finance it without sinking the province into debt.

But here's another angle -- with the province in such a healthy financial state, any other political party can promise to do the same things exactly without the slightest fear of having to break the promise.

All in all, it adds up to one of the most interesting political situations in the province's history.

Space doesn't permit a detailed account of the premier's program, but there are some angles that should be explained further.

According to the premier's announcement, the five-year plan aimed at easing the recession and providing employment may cost as much as $200,000,000 over and above ordinary government spending during the next five years. This extra amount will be taken from the province's accumulated reserves, which amount to around $335,000,000.

The program, according to the premier will involve heavy additional expenditures by all departments of government.

What this means, in effect, is that governmental spending over the next five years will amount to $200,000,000 or so more than current revenues.

At the rate government spending has increased during recent years, this won't be such a terrifically large boost. It will average out to around $40,000,000 a year. But instead of coming from steadily-increasing revenues as in the past, it will come out of savings. The "social credit" "pay-as-you-go" policy has apparently been set aside. It has been decided that conditions call for progressively bigger budgets each year, rather than drastic cutbacks, as had been threatened.

An example of increased departmental spending is the education phase of the five-year plan. The premier said education will cost $350,000,000 in the next five years, and the plan will include building of a technical training school for northern Alberta.

The spending will average out to about $70,000,000 a year -- compared with around $52,000,000 being spent this year, for an increase of less than $20,000,000 a year over five years.

In view of the steadily increasing costs of government in Alberta, these sums aren't as staggering as some people think. That leaves the five specific projects mentioned earlier as the really new departure.

Those projects will be financed out of the estimated $10,000,000 a year which would have gone into dividends. The rest of the money are things the government might reasonably be expected to introduce anyway.

At the same time, the plan has some thing for just about everyone.

The Municipal Finance Corporation will be revived to arrange loans for municipalities, school board and hospital boards. While another reversal of policy, the resurrection of a governmental body that was declared unnecessary earlier this year meets with the general approval of municipalities. (cont'd)

Farmers will be able to use tax-free purple gasolene in farm trucks away from their own property -- something the Opposition has sought repeatedly.

The province will assume capital costs -- debt charges -- under the federal-provincial-municipal hospital plan. Nursing home care and outpatient services will be introduced "progressively" into the program.

A separate department of labour will be set up, with its own minister. At present, one department handles both industries and labour.

There will be a program of government guaranteed farm home improvement loans through the treasury branches.

A permanent board will be set up to study and advise on provincial-municipal relations. Highway, bridge and public works programs will be geared to the needs of each community and timed to seasonal fluctuations in unemployment.

Premier Manning's explanation of the decision to suspend the dividends is worth special mention. He said that while "most people recognize the soundness in principle..." of the dividend plan... "At the same time many feel... there is yet an even more pressing need for the government to provide facilities of province-wide benefit of the type I have outlined."

Political observers think the big announcement was shrewdly timed. It came out on the eve of the Progressive Conservative leadership convention here in the capital, and effectively snatched headlines away from the Tories.

Another word about the financing of the five-year plan. The province's accumulated reserves are not held in cash, but in bonds, municipal debentures and other investments. Money will be borrowed as it is needed, and these bonds will be used as security. As the bonds mature, the loans will be repaid. Net result will be no effect on the government's nearly non-existent provincial debt.

As Premier Manning pointed out, the reserves have been set aside over the years for a rainy day. The cabinet, working over the past several months, and the Social Credit caucus, meeting here last week, decided that the rainy day is here.

VIOLET GROVE HOLDS SPORTS DAY

The Violet Grove Community League Sports Day held August 9th, was a great success, even with the adverse weather conditions. There was a heavy rain the night before, but the men in the league did a terrific job in getting the ball diamond in shape before noon.

(cont'd in next column)

With the help of Campion Pipe Line's and Mr. Frank Norwick's Gas Millar Diggers, the levelling of the diamonds were accomplished the previous week. Mr. Jack Platz also helped with this project by levelling off process.

A lot of credit should also be given to the ladies for helping out in the refreshment booth. -- they did a wonderful job.

The tournament's first prize in hard ball went to Drayton Valley Seniors, while second prize went to MacKay. In men's softball, Mobil Oil went home with first prize and Campion took second, but all was not lost, for the Women's softball team in Violet Grove came through with first prize by defeating Mobil Oil's women 8 to 7. "A Swell Game Girls."

At the conclusion of the Sports activities the community gathered at the school in order to dance to the music of the Pembina River Ranch Boys. It was here the draw was made for the $50.00 being raffled off, the lucky winner was Mr. Norm Anderson of Calmar Construction.

At midnight everyone went home tired, but with satisfaction of having spent a wonderful day with the Violet Grove Community.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES CONVENE

NEW YORK---Diving law must govern the family circle before the social problems of any community can be solved, program speakers told and international delegation of Jehovah's Witnesses assembled in convention at Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds, July 27 through August 3.

According to Mr. Ralph Wikander, presiding minister of the local congregation, 34 delegates from the Drayton Valley and Edson area are returning from the eight-day event. He stated that the effects of the ministerial training program outlined will be "shared by every community on earth" as the more than 150,000 delegates seriously apply the Bible principles learned to their own congregations in 120 different lands, bridging racial and national barriers with the forces of love and unity.

Featured was the graduation of the 11st class of the Watchtower Bible School of Gilead, missionary school of the organization. The program was filled with lectures and reports by delegates. Many of the 254 missionary centres and 84 branch offices.

Principles speaker was Mr. Nathan H. Knorr, president of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, governing agency used by Jehovah's Witnesses. Address given in his talk to the graduate ministers on "Stick to Your Work" was applied to all present.

Practical aspect of the house-to-house ministry was stressed at every session of the assembly and results of this apostolic method of preaching in modern times were noted. More than 719,000 Witnesses are now sharing in the Bible-teaching program world-wide as in evidence of their interest in a Christian community, the report stated.

Wednesday witnessed a record mass-baptism of 7,136 newly ordained ministers.

Some 800 persons, delegates and visitors were on hand for the voting on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Kirby took the lead when the first count was announced by Chairman Bayall, when he took 150 votes, with Lazerte receiving 106, Watkins 69, Toshach 40 and Main 30. With the elimination of Main on the third count and Toshach on the fourth, gave a final figure in the fifth ballot of 206 for Kirby, 157 for Lazerte and 32 for Watkins, giving Mr. Kirby the required 50% of the ballots cast. Mr. Main then moved, seconded by Mr. Lazerte that the election be unanimous, and the entire body gave Mr. Kirby a long, cheering, standing ovation.

Addressing the convention as leader Mr. Kirby called for active organization work in all ridings. He expressed the hope that some candidates will be nominated this fall. General consensus of opinion is that there will be a provincial election early next spring, following the regular session of the legislature.

The very successful convention closed with a banquet on Saturday evening.

With the 1958-59 school year to start right after Labor Day, Drayton Valley will begin with almost a full staff, at the time of writing there are still two vacancies but they may be filled by the time school opens next week.

Mr. T. McManus will fill the position of Junior and Senior High School principal with grades seven to twelve.

In the Elementary School Mr. John Gray, formerly principal at Stewieville, will be principal for grades one to six.

Following is the list of teachers in both schools, announcement will be made of the grades each will teach in next weeks paper.

High School: T. M. Manus, V. Kupchenko, Olie Kupchenko, C.I. Moody, William Glas, Mrs. Alice Glass, Roger Murray; Mrs. Peggy Arkininstall, Miss S. Holmes, Philip Gypalluk, and Jack Hackman, with one vacancy yet to be filled.

LODGEPOLE SCHOOL MOVED.

The four classrooms which comprised the former Lodgepole School have been moved about half a block north and a little east. The four classrooms have been arranged into two sections, with a new addition being put in which will about double the floor space; the new section is being built between the two previous sections to form one unit of the whole.

Washroom facilities, a science room and an additional classroom is being built by an Edmonton Contractor. Total value of the permit for the job was in the neighborhood of $140,000. It is expected the new school will be able to take care of at least 150 pupils.

Pan American Petroleum Corporation has also taken out a permit to install sewer and water connections for a mobile camp for their employees. Ten of these will be in the section of town across from the Town Hall and seven others will be near the location of Two M Service Station on the main highway. The company will install sewer and water hookups in all the mobile sites and will do landscaping. Each mobile unit will have to have plumbing facilities before they will be allowed to move into the park. It is expected that work will start immediately on telephone connections to Lodgepole.
